Through tempests on life's troubled sea
There shines a light no storm can smother
To guide us through to safety—
That beacon bright of hope—Our Mother.

Her prayers for us to heaven are borne
And heeded there e'er any other;
Her arms are open, when all forlorn
We face that one safe port—Our Mother.

PARK WORKERS
MAKE PROGRESS

Courts To Be Graded;
Seats For Ball Diamond
To Be Sought

Improvement work at Centennial park is progressing favorably under supervision of the park commission. The tennis courts, which have been relocated to afford additional courts and more room for the ball diamonds, are to be graded next week and put in shape for playing. Drives in the park also will be graded next week, preparatory to grading. The drives are to be oiled in an attempt to keep them free of dust. New backstops are yet to be erected at the ball field. Park Commissioner Edgar C. Sheen Jr., said plans are also being considered for new bleachers. He said the commission was endeavoring to get wooden bleachers from another city which had built concrete seats. The lawn and flowers also are being looked after by the workers at the park.

Policemen Named
In Damage Action

LISBON, May 13.—William McKeever today filed suit against Lester Kearns and George Kidder, members of the East Liverpool police department, and their bonding company, the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co., asking damages of $25,000 and costs. McKeever charges that while suffering from a cold Feb. 26, 1938, he collapsed on the street and the defendant officers picked him up and lodged him in jail. He said he lay all night, with little clothing, on the cold damp floor of a cell. He further alleges that a doctor examined him the next morning and he was then released, with no charges being filed.

As a result of the experience, he claims, he spent three weeks in a hospital, under the care of specialists.

REILLY SCHOOL
FACES SCARLET
FEVER THREAT

Ten Cases Reported By Health Board; Others

LISBON RD. HOME
BLAMED BY BOARD

Suffering From Disease, Child Is Sent To Classes

Health board authorities fought the spread of scarlet fever at Reilly school building today after disclosing how one child gave the disease to at least 10 others.

Another case of scarlet fever was reported at Columbia Street school and steps are being taken to guard other children there.

Sends Child to School

Dr. R. T. Holzbach, health commissioner, and Miss Frances Markovich, health nurse, said the communicable disease was passed on to other innocent victims when a mother on the Lisbon road sent one of her children to school when the child should have been kept at home.

The mother, questioned yesterday, said she thought her child had the measles and not scarlet fever. "Nevertheless," the health officials said, "the case should have been reported to the board of health because measles, like scarlet fever, is a communicable disease."

A three-weeks quarantine was immediately established yesterday at the Lisbon road home where two other children now have scarlet fever.

Members of the board of health, meeting last night, authorized the expenditure of additional funds for more nursing help if needed at the schools. New victims are expected at Reilly and Columbia Street schools the first part of the week. Dr. Holzbach said.

Warns Parents

Meanwhile, he warned parents to keep their children out of public places until the scare subsides.

He also said that six or eight of the first and second grade pupils at Reilly school, who had contracted the disease, probably would not pass this year because their grades were on "the border line" and they would have no chance to catch up in their studies due to the three weeks quarantine.

Music Week Program

Joseph Steffel, 11, fourth grade champion, came the closest to winning over Migliarini, holding him to a 7-5 score.

Surprise of the St. Paul finals was the performance of Thomas Scullion, seven-year old second grader, who showed promise of developing into a crack blunder. Scullion shoots hard and fairly ac-

Action Wipes Away Last
Trace of Coal Shortage Fear

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 13.—The union shop contract with the United Mine Workers of America (CFO) for which John L. Lewis fought through eight weeks of deadlock and growing national emergency, was approved today by 15 of the 21 bituminous coal associations in the Appalachian joint conference after six southern groups withdrew.

The approval of the contract wiped away the last trace of fear of coal shortage and will send back to work Monday 300,000 of the 345,000 miners employed in the Appalachian 8-state area.

Ready to Sign

John L. Lewis, CIO head and president of the United Mine Workers of America, said the miners were ready to sign "forthwith" the standard agreement adopted by the majority today with a number of independent companies within the six districts that withdrew from the conference.

He declared the United Mine Workers were aware that a "preponderant sentiment of tonnage in the six districts are in truth and in fact, favorable to acceptance of the agreement."

"Then the CIO head added a word of warning."

"I wish to say to them that until they make up their minds, some public policy requires that they keep those mines closed. The mine workers must not be evicted from their homes. There must not be shooting of mine workers by coal operators or any other use of lethal weapons against them. That goes particularly for Harlan county (Ky.) and the other five districts. Soldiers will not operate those mines."

Upset But Unhurt,
Victim is Found in Unfinished House

Police In State-Wide Hunt For Two Abductors And Putnam's Car

(By Associated Press)

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., May 13.—Bound and gagged, George Palmer Putnam, 52, Hollywood publisher and husband of the late Amelia Earhart, was found in an incomplete house here today, a few hours after he was kidnaped from his North Hollywood home.

Putnam, unhurt, said the kidnapers demanded the name of the author of the anonymous book, "The Man Who Killed Hitler" and suggested it would be "healthier" if he ceased printing it.

A statewide search for the pair and for Putnam's car, in which they brought him here, was ordered by sheriff's deputies.

"They were very decent to me" Putnam declared. "They didn't rough me at all."

The publisher said he refused their demands and recalled ruefully that he had "thought the other warnings were phonies." Receipt of a bullet-ridden copy of the book, two letters and a telephone call threatening his life were reported to Los Angeles police within the past month and on one occasion he fired two shots at a man who was climbing a tree near his bedroom window.

"I'm a little upset but I'm not hurt," Putnam said as he sat in the sheriff's office here.

Then he described the events of last night. About 5 o'clock, he recalled, "my secretary, (Miss Josephine Berger) received a telephone call supposed to have come from Rex Cole (Hollywood actor's agent and close friend of Putnam).

"The caller said Cole had an important matter to discuss and wanted me to come to the house. Shortly before 7:30, I walked into the garage and pushed the car. There two men jumped on me and pushed me into the car. They blindfolded me and tied my hands. We drove for about an hour. They conversed between themselves in German, but both spoke English, one fluently and in an educated way. I asked them what they wanted and reminded them that kidnaping was a serious offense.

"They said they wanted to know the man who had contributed to the Hitler book from the German end, I told them I didn't know and stuck to that story."

"Finally they stopped the car. One of them got out. I am not sure, but I believe he went to talk with someone in a car which was following mine. Soon he returned and we drove on. They did not threaten me, but suggested that I give up publishing the book. Then I could tell we were driving off the main road."

"They walked me, blindfolded, for a short distance and then made me lie down on a board. They taped my legs and hands and mouth tightly and left, telling me I would be found in the morning."

"I managed to work loose the bandage on my mouth after an hour or so. I'm not sure how long. I called for help and some people came. Then they called the officers. I discovered when they freed me that because I was in an unfinished house, I would have been found as soon as it was daylight. Obviously they did not intend to hurt me."

Putnam was found about a few minutes after Los Angeles police had issued a statewide teletype that he was missing. The former New York publisher and Bend, Ore., mayor early this month was reported planning to wed for the third time. His bride, friends said, would be Mrs. Jean Marie Cousigny James of Beverly Hills, whose divorce from William Robert James, son of U. S. District Judge William P. James, becomes final May 13.

Putnam in recent weeks had ridiculed threats against his life.

MOTHER'S DAY

Mother's day is when sons and daughters buy her something besides a new broom and call it a special occasion.

She acts pleased and surprised, though she has known for three days it was a deadlock between a box of candy and a bouquet, and has remembered in the meantime to buy something for her own mother and her mother-in-law.

But there's no time to waste. The family must be hustled through breakfast and made ready for church while she does preliminary work on Sunday dinner. She must see to it that the children's shoes are shined, that their father has a clean handkerchief, that everyone's ties and ribbons are on straight and that the small change for the collection plate has been distributed.

While she is getting herself ready, someone's hair has to be combed over again, there is a scratched knee to be doctored, the telephone rings three times, and the dog has to be let out. It takes some doing, but mother gets her family to church on time and is justly proud of the accomplishment.

She hasn't a thing to look forward to afterward except getting Sunday dinner on the table, clearing off the remains when the family leaves to divide up the Sunday paper, and washing and putting away the dishes. In honor of Mother's day, father helps to dry them and breaks only two or three.

During the afternoon mother spends her spare time keeping peace in the family, making decisions about ice cream cones, warning the children not to play with the hose, pleading with them to be quiet while father takes a nap and wondering if a picnic supper would be worth the trouble.

She decides it wouldn't, but is over-ruled, fills a basket, remembers to take along a cake of soap and a towel, provides extra clothing for the smaller members of the family in case the weather gets chilly and leads an expedition into the great outdoors.

When she gets the family home again, washed and put to bed, with nothing to think about but a washing on Monday, an ironing on Tuesday, new wallpaper, cleaning the attic and meals for another week, she relaxes and reflects how nice it was to be remembered on Mother's day.

She would eat a piece of that candy they gave her if she knew where it was, but is informed there's only one piece left and it has been promised to her youngest for being a little darling and going right to sleep without asking for a drink because his father didn't relish the prospect of making an extra trip upstairs to get it for him.

A NEW RELIEF PROBLEM

In Columbus, where harried legislators are fixing up a patchwork scheme to help local government share relief costs; in Washington, where congressmen are investigating WPA preparatory to voting on another huge appropriation, a new relief problem is forming itself.

The old problem was to make relief money available to persons without adequate income, and it still exists. But super-imposed on it is the new problem of finding a source of income for the purpose. Borrowing, it is now conceded, is not the solution, though it still is being used.

It is one thing, however, for a remote government in Washington to write promissory notes against the future and quite another thing for local government, where debt is plainly visible and painfully meaningful. Even in the case of WPA, Mayor Hoan of Milwaukee, testifying before the house appropriations committee, believes borrowing has become intolerable. "We ought to pay for this as we go and then maybe everybody would wake up and put people back to work," Mayor Hoan declared.

Whether people can be put back to work by resolution is debatable, but there's no question about the waking up part as the relief debt begins to be felt in American communities. It is plain at long last that there's more entailed in helping the other fellow than a spirit of Christian generosity and the dubious economic theory of pump priming.

PHIT!

Encouraging tales of an economy bloc which was going to curb congress now turn out to have been nine parts wishful thinking to one part fact.

The economy bloc still exists, in nebulous form. A few of its members are standing up on their hind legs and telling the world they're on the job, but most of the rest seem to have contracted spring fever. Economy has gone phit.

Its lip servants don't see any percentage in trying. It's easier—and more comfortable—to be called to the telephone when it's time to fight against larger appropriations. After all, economy is even less popular now than it has been in the past. The White House doesn't believe in it.

If congressmen could be shown how fighting and voting against spending could help them at the polls, they'd fight and vote. That's the way it is in representative government. Nothing happens in congress till something happens back home—and back home constituents are still saying, "Well, if somebody's going to get a chunk of all that dough let's get ours while the getting's good."

LOOPHOLES

Candy's removal from the sales tax list by a state supreme court ruling declaring it is a food and therefore exempt will decrease revenue from this source still further.

It is an example of how taxes are affected endlessly by discovery of legal loopholes. In the case of income taxation, for instance, loopholes are opened up with such frequency that tax collectors are lucky to keep abreast of new developments and must call frequently on congress to supply legal plugs.

Taxpayers cannot be blamed for evading taxation by every legal means. It is a matter of survival. Without opposition to hold them in check there is no limit to the inroads which taxes would make upon taxpayers' pocketbooks. Sometimes it looks as though their only chance of conserving ability to pay would be to find more loopholes; it has become impossible to point any more to open doors and say, "There's a place where no tax collector dares to stand."

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, May 14

Sunday's horoscope holds testimonies of much activity and high ambitions, with fulfillment of cherished hopes and wishes. These may be won by the application of industry, sound judgment and steadfast purpose. The co-operation of those in high places and influence is assured.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of good fortune. High hopes and wishes will be achieved by industry, courage and sound projects, and with the hearty support of those in high places. Promotion, happiness and perhaps public recognition await the ambitious and diligent.

A child born on this day may be richly endowed with the many factors for a successful and happy as well as useful life. It may be talented, ambitious and have responsible personal character as well, making for prestige and popularity.

For Monday, May 15

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of fair progress, with some rather peculiar or baffling developments, possibly in the direction of home, social or sentimental entanglements. There may be a measure of concern or disappointment in such relations, since intrigue or subtlety may menace.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of slow progress in business, with the personal life concerned with intrigue or anxiety. There may be sentimental or social affiliations, in which be alert, prudent and circumspect. Obscure or chaotic conditions menace.

A child born on this day may have rather unusual talents, with patience, firmness and persistence assisting in other attainments. But it may have some obscure, erratic or confused factors to cope with in its subtle makeup. It may be romantic, sentimental and inclined to mystical research.

Congressman Sol Bloom was booted at a dinner in Washington for declaring that "we ought to thank God for the privilege of paying some tribute in taxes in this country and having peace." The boos couldn't see any connection between paying taxes and minding our own business.

The government could go a long way towards getting out of the red if it slapped a $5 license, or nuisance, tax on every autograph hunter.

England has a new dance called the "Chamberlain." You probably stumble forward, jump back and then waver.

After Albania the axis boys who are remodeling Europe might advertise, "no job too small."

For Every Child A Tooth!
Ancient Adage Discussed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE EXPECTANT mother must feed her growing child and Nature has decreed that the child's demands are met first, even at the expense of the mother's own tissues. For instance, if there is not enough calcium in the expectant mother's diet to supply the foetus, it will get the calcium from the mother's teeth and bones. The old adage "For every child, a tooth" illustrates this. That adage is true only if the mother's diet is insufficient in calcium.

The items besides the ordinary, average substances one eats which should be in the expectant mother's diet are:

Calcium: milk, buttermilk, cheese (except cottage cheese), egg yolk.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through this column.

dried figs, ice cream and pharmaceutical preparations. Leafy vegetables also contain calcium but it is not in a readily available form.

Phosphorus Needs

Phosphorus: Meat, fish, poultry, milk, eggs, chocolate, nuts, wheat bran, peas and beans.

Iron: Liver and other glandular foods, red meats, egg yolk, peaches, apricots, prunes and raisins (small amount), leafy vegetables (small amount) and iron salts.

Iodine: Sea food, iodized salt.

Vitamins A and D: Butter, cheese, whole milk, cod liver oil.

Vitamin B-1: Brewer's yeast, wheat germ, whole wheat bread, raw cabbage, carrots, fruits, leafy vegetables.

Vitamin B-2: Yeast, liver, bananas, beets, egg yolk, carrots, citrus fruits, oysters.

Vitamin C: Citrus fruits, tomato, parsley, green or red peppers, uncooked cabbage, other leafy vegetables.

Vitamin E: Wheat germ oil, whole cereals, egg yolk, green vegetables, muscle meat.

An average menu for uncomplicated pregnancy is:

Breakfast: One orange (tomato juice if preferred); rolled oats (or some whole wheat cereal); sugar and cream (or a glass of milk) on the cereal; one egg; coffee (with cream and sugar); buttered toast; and jelly if desired.

Luncheon: Creamed asparagus; lettuce (with mayonnaise unless obesity is to be avoided); macaroni and cheese; bread (preferably whole wheat) with butter; ice cream or a glass of milk; coffee or tea, if desired.

Dinner: Cream of tomato soup, soda crackers, Brussels sprouts, baked potato, roast beef (or liver, fish, oysters, or chicken); bread (or whole wheat muffin) with butter; glass of milk; blanc-mange, custard, or other dessert.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. A. V.: "Please tell me if blood pressure should read 100 your age. Have heard some say and others say that if this is then a person 80 years old would have 180. I am 52 years old my pressure is 122. If this is too I would like to know."

Answer—I see your difficulty. They are entirely theoretical. They examine normal people at ages, it is found in general that average blood pressure is about 100 and goes up about ten points decade until about the age of 40. The ones who are destined to high blood pressure then go on rising higher, but they don't reach the age of 80. Blood pressures around 130, because people who that long are from birth destined to be in the low blood pressure group. Your pressure indicates good health and a long life.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendenning can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 235 W. 45th St., New York City. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Femine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

You and yours are cordially invited to attend this special Mother's Day service and thank God for the most beautiful gift—Mother.

A Worthwhile Mother's Day

Your mother was the instrument which God chose to use to give you being and birth into this world. She is God's hand-maid. She gladly gave herself to this His service, even though she knew that grave danger of her undertaking. No wonder God commanded from high Heaven that mankind, through all time, should do her honor.

In recent times, a sort of "campaign" has been made out of this command to honor mothers. The tendency has been to substitute a superficial and sentimental celebration of a single day for a profound appreciation of motherhood through every day.

Your church is joining with others in seeking to make Mother's Day the worthwhile day it deserves to be. The honor we would pay is worthy enough to mingle with the very worship we render to the God who gave motherhood's blessing to us. Let us make our celebration as deep as our love, as worthy as our worship.

To that end we devote the services of this Sunday, and urge all mothers and children of mothers to attend the services in God's house where we shall accord fitting reverence and gratitude to the mothers who brought us into this world. We are very certain that no honor we might yield will be more acceptable to any true mother than that which we may offer her withness in the sanctuary of the most high God.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shall thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed" (Psalm 37:3).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spiritual perception brings out the possibilities of being, destroys reliance on sight, but God, and so makes man the image of his Maker in deed and in truth" (p. 203).

The subject of the sermon is "Faith Through Christian Motherhood." Complete services are as follows:

Sunday school, 9:45; Acts Rev. Charles W. Youtz, superintendent.

The work of St. Paul was that which led him far from his homeland. He was determined to preach Christ to the limit of his own strength. Patiently and lovingly he labored to bring people to the saving knowledge of the only Savior. He made friends for Christ by preaching His Gospel which all people must have to be saved. He established and enjoyed the fellowship of Christian people, which reaches down to the present time. Christian fellowship is something unique and unsurpassed.

Morning worship, 11, sermon. It is true that it is the power of God that is given credit for the establishing of Christian faith in the human heart. No effort of man is to be given credit for the bestowal of faith upon people. Yet one of the agencies that God may use for the cultivation of faith is devout Christian believers. Mothers' Day reminds us of the power that Christian Mothers have and have had in presenting the claims of Jesus Christ. "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world." The religion that Mothers have, helps to mould the faith of their children.

Luther league, 6:30; devotional topic, "The Christian Community"; leader, Twila Myers.

"The DOCTOR" by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

CHAPTER XVII

Suddenly Beverly sat upright. "Listen, Doctor, did you have any dinner tonight?"

"I forget. I don't believe I did."

"You idiot! Why didn't you tell me?"

She disappeared, and he put his head back and closed his eyes.

When she came back, he was sound asleep in his chair. She sat down quietly and waited for him to rouse, watching him and protecting him, as women always protect their sleeping men. But there was nothing of that in her face when, at two o'clock in the morning, he opened his eyes and sat upright in his chair.

"Great Scott! How long have I been asleep?"

"Not long. And eat these sandwiches before you go. I've kept the coffee hot."

She was smiling, and he grinned back.

"I ought to be shot," he said. "But not on an empty stomach. Even condemned men get a breakfast, don't they? And you are an angel of light and queen of all women."

He said it lightly, but she flushed as she poured his coffee.

"And you have forgiven us?"

"It's Christmas now, and all sins are forgiven on Christmas." He looked at her and dropped his bantering tone. "A very happy Christmas to you, my dear," he said, gravely. "All that you want of life, and in abundance."

"And what shall I wish for you?" He was still looking at her.

"That," he said, his lips smiling, but his eyes still grave, "is a secret. A profound secret."

She flushed again. They were back, think God, back to the easy friendliness of the spring. But even as he thought that, he wondered if it could mean anything to either of them. She was young, but how long would she wait for him or any other man? And what had he to offer her, either now or in the future?

But a life, what was left from his own work? A tired man coming home, not even to her, but to any one else who needed him.

It was almost three before he left. The servants had gone to bed, and in the hall he picked up his hat and stood gazing down at her. Then he stopped suddenly and kissed her.

It was his moment. He knew it when she stood before him, flushed and grave, as though something tremendous had happened to her. But he could not take it. He would love her all his life, but not now. Not yet. Perhaps not ever.

"Sleep well, my dear," he said, and got himself out of the house.

He heard the door close slowly behind him, and for a minute he was tempted to turn back to rap on it, and when she opened it, to take her in his arms and hold her there. But he did not. He tramped down the hill to his own house, with Caesar waiting for him inside, to discover in the hall mirror that his unruly hair was standing up over his head; and when he reached his room, to find that one of his socks was hanging to the mantel, by a thumb tack and stuffed with small lumpy parcels. Katie's work, he thought, and Katie's mute apology.

"The poor kid," he thought, and wondered if she was still awake.

Katie, however, was asleep, and Caesar was snoring in the register in the floor. It was then that he remembered the neglected furnace and, swearing softly to himself, went down the stairs to the dark and dirty cellar to stoke it furiously.

He carried two pictures to bed with him that night. One was Beverly Lewis closing her eyes under that kiss of his; a Beverly flushed and serious and always beyond his reach. The other was of a small blond and a squat middle-aged woman staring at him through the darkness.

"Oh, it's you doctor! Is there anything wrong with the suit?"

"No, that's all right, Mrs. Ettenburg. I'm afraid I've brought you some bad news."

And as he lay there in the dark, with that absurd sock hanging to the mantel, he could hear once again her voice, low, almost a whisper.

"Not Jake, Doctor. Oh, God, Doctor, not Jake!"

The hospital treated Christmas with the proper combination of reverence and rejoicing. There were flowers on the center tables of the wards and a small tree for the children's ward. The real celebration, however, took place at ten o'clock on Christmas morning in the big chapel on the lower floor. Here for days internes and nurses off duty had trimmed the big tree and wrapped small parcels; to each child a small toy and some fruit, to the men heavy woolen socks, and to the women warm gloves or stockings.

Chris found the patients more touching than he would have a year before. He knew now from what they came, the pitiable background of their lives. But in the soft light from the tree their faces glowed with a new hope.

The service began. "Almighty God, who hast given us Thine only begotten Son to take our nature upon Him—"

"The internes' quartette was singing now. There was a slight surge of motion among the patients, a relaxation, as though the morning's business would soon be over and the real excitement begin. Behind him in the hall was the muffled sound of small bells and he knew that the hospital Santa Claus was waiting outside. When he turned, he saw Beverly beside him. She gave him a quick smile.

"I overslept," she whispered. "How pretty it is! I must have nearly killed you last night."

But she shook her head. "You needed the rest, I didn't."

They stood side by side, friendly but silent, while excited sounds from the hall and the louder noise of the bells indicated the approach of the high point of the morning. When he glanced down at her, he saw that she was very sober.

"They get so little," she said in a low voice, "and it means so much to them."

He saw that there were tears in her eyes and that she was fumbling for a handkerchief. He got out his own, held it to show that it had not been used as a duster, and gave it to her. She was smiling when she returned it.

"I always cry at this," she whispered. "Excitement. I'm perfectly all right."

Then Santa Claus came in, portly with pillows and wildly jingling, and Christmas had come to the hospital. Stockings and woolen gloves, handkerchiefs and mufflers, toys for the children and an orange for everybody—the largesse was poured out and passed around.

Sometime during that confusion Beverly slipped away. Chris, turning to smile down at her, found her gone, and knew that the day was over for him. He went about as usual, made his belated calls and at noon sat down with Lily Walters and Katie to a dried and overcooked turkey and what was meant to be a plum pudding.

It was the next day that he went again to see Jake's widow, and to feel bitterly that Staunton Lewis had raised still another barrier between Beverly and himself. For Rachel told him that the case with the traction company had already been settled, and he stared at her with blank eyes.

"Settled?"

"Yes, Doctor. There was a man here early yesterday morning. And I needed the money."

"How much did you get?"

"Five hundred dollars."

And as clearly as if he had been present he saw Staunton Lewis leaving him in the hall two nights before and not going up the stairs. Going back instead to that library of his, and closing the door so that he could telephone. Telephone and settle—for five hundred dollars.

He looked around the empty hop, where a black cloth covered the canary's cage. Then with anger almost choking him he went out again.

He made no attempt to see Beverly during the week that followed. Fortunately he was busy. Christmas had brought its toll to the city's poor. Men had been drunk and abused their families, and children were sick of cheap candies. There was an epidemic of births. Too, new lives coming in with the New Year.

"You've got a fine little girl."

"A girl! And some day she'll have to go through this!"

He would prop his feet on the side of the bed and sleep between their points. Then at night, with the brass ball on his bed anchored with adhesive plaster and his hands stiff with cold from the open window, he would read surgery with fierce determination. "Following a longitudinal incision on the anterior wall—"

He carried on somehow—study, city cases, private work. It was poor preparation for the task ahead. He found that his hands were shaking with pure nerve irritability, and surveyed the gloomily.

"Good God," he thought, "can't go into the operating room like that."

He gave up smoking that day of the year, and as a consequence was irritable to the point of frenzy. Caesar, sensitive to his moods, retired to the kitchen and lay resignedly under the stove. Lily Walters, moving about her duties, attempted to exact attention and become invisible, walking on her toes, and drove him distracted.

It was late that night, while the din of the incoming New Year was still going on, when he reached the house and found a note. Katie's uniformed hand on the battered hall table. "Please, Dr. Lewis."

He looked at his watch. It was the day of the year, and it was after midnight. But suddenly he wanted to hear Beverly's voice. He wanted to hear her say, "Hello," he said. "I'm sorry to be late. Is anything wrong?"

"Wrong? No. I thought I wanted to say 'Happy New Year.' That's all."

"The same to you, my dear, as many of them." He said soberly. "And good luck tomorrow!"

"How can I help it after this?"

It was not much. Certainly not much to cherish through the years, but he went upstairs that night with a feeling of renewed strength and a deep contentment as though he no longer stood alone, as though indeed she had put a sword in his hand with which to conquer whatever was ahead. He was never to forget it.

Poland Braves Hitler's Wrath, Fearing "Anschluss" If Nazis Get Foot in Door

Poland, which participated with Germany in the partition of Czechoslovakia, fears she may be the Reich's next objective. Under the leadership of Josef Beck (pictured above), the late Marshal Pilsudski's protege and now foreign minister, she has taken every precaution to prevent repetition of the dismemberment which destroyed Poland in 1795. Starting with signing of mutual protection pacts with France and England, this policy has culminated in a growing friendship with Soviet Russia, long Poland's bogeyman.

Announcement of "normalization of Polish-Soviet relations" was made in Warsaw after arrival of Vladimir P. Potemkin, Soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs, whose conferences with Britain and France are to decide the limits of Soviet participation in the anti-dictator front.

Indication of Poland's growing feeling of security behind Beck's mutual protection shield was the direct blow at Germany, made at the same time the Russian rapprochement was revealed. During Hitler's rage, Poland announced she was rejecting "insidious proposals" from Berlin for a Polish-German attack on the Russian Ukraine.

Poland, an ancient kingdom whose history dates from 966 and a great power from the fourteenth to the seventeenth century, was completely dismembered by three partitions during the eighteenth century, in 1772, 1793 and 1795. Prussia, Russia and Austria each taking a share of the booty, as shown at map on left. Overrun by the Austro-German armies during the World War, she regained her independence in the Treaty of Versailles in 1919. Prussia was forced to surrender 6,973 square miles of land to the republic; Russia, 101,196 square miles; and Austria, 30,914 square miles. In addition, Poland in 1920 seized 11,140 square miles from Lithuania. Post-war Poland is shown on map at right.

Picketing Cradle of Liberty

More than thirty women picketed Boston's famed Cradle of Liberty, Faneuil Hall, protesting employment of married women in public service jobs. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was to have addressed a "New Citizen's Day" audience but failed to arrive when her plane from New York was cancelled.

QUAKERS GAIN CLOSE VICTORY IN COUNTY MEET

Salem Edges E. Palestine By One Point To Capture 4th Championship In Row

Quakers Win Mile Relay To Decide Outcome of Meet; Joe Morris Is Individual Star, Copping Three First Places

If they come any closer, Frederick E. Cope probably won't be able to finish out the term as Salem High school track coach and faculty manager.

Meaning, of course, that Cope stands an excellent chance of suffering a nervous breakdown if his Quaker thins-clads become involved in another close duel like the one of last night in which they barely nosed out East Palestine to win the Columbiana county track and field championship for the fourth straight time.

The Quakers captured the team championship by the narrow margin of one point, scoring 67 1/2 points to East Palestine's 66 1/2.

East Liverpool, which is sponsoring track this season for the first time in many years, finished a poor third with 6 1/2 points, while Lisbon was fourth with 6 1/2, Wellsville trailed Lisbon with five points, while Leetonia brought up the rear with one point. Columbiana did not score.

Crowd Numbers 1,500

Despite unusually cold weather for this time of year, more than 1,500 fans crowded the small steel stands in East Palestine's fine new stadium to watch the running of the meet, held outside of Salem this year for the first time since 1931.

Not until the running of the final event, the mile relay, was the outcome of the meet decided.

The Quakers trailed East Palestine by one point, 62 1/2 to 63 1/2, at the start of the mile relay and needed a first place in this event to win the meet championship.

Rising to the occasion, a plucky quartet of Salem thinsclads raced the mile in 3 minutes, 45.4 seconds to finish 10 yards ahead of East Palestine's relay team and give the Quakers the meet title.

Amos Dunlap ran the first leg of the mile relay, event and held his own throughout most of the distance, although falling a few yards behind before passing the baton to Jim Armeni.

Increases Lead

Armeni picked up the few yards Dunlap had lost and gave Glenn Whinnery a five-yard start on the third lap. Whinnery increased the Salem lead to 10 yards in the third lap, then passed the baton to John Handzick who maintained the Quakers advantage throughout the final lap.

The battle for the team championship was one of the closest in county track and field history. Salem took an early lead in the meet, but fell behind by one point mid-day in the duel and continued to trail by this margin until after the running of the last event.

Joe Morris and Dunlap were the individual heroes of the Salem victory. Morris carried off high-point honors by placing first in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, and the 120-yard high hurdles. He was awarded three medals and a loving cup for his fine individual performance.

Dunlap raced to victory in the 220-yard low hurdles and gave the Quakers another first place in the broad jump.

Get Nine Firsts

All told, the Quakers took nine firsts in 14 events. In addition to Morris and Dunlap, other Salem athletes to capture firsts were Dick Beck in the shot put, Clarence Woerther in the discus and Whinnery in the 440-yard dash.

Art Chappel made a fine showing in the half mile, putting on a strong finish to place second to William Landsberger of East Palestine, who won the 880-yard event in 2 minutes, 8 seconds.

Landsberger also finished first in the mile run, covering this distance in 4 minutes, 49.5 seconds. Charlie Huddleston of Salem set the pace in the mile, but fell to third place near the end of the race after leading practically all the way.

East Palestine scored only five firsts, but picked up a liberal amount of seconds and thirds to keep in the race for team honors. Howard Hill and Bill Scally shared first place for the Bulldogs in the pole vault, tying at 11 feet, 3 inches. Bob Clark of Salem was third in the vault, while Tommy Rhodes tied for fourth.

Wins High Jump

The high jump was won by Scally of East Palestine with a leap of 5 feet, 9 inches. Turner of Salem tied with DeSelle of Lisbon for second in this event.

Winning performances in every event did not approach the existing county records. Cold weather was largely responsible for the lack of record-breaking feats.

Summary of the meet follows: DISCUS—Won by Woerther (Salem); SANDERS (East Palestine) second; PARIS (East Palestine) third; Brown (Wellsville) fourth. Distance—122 feet, 11 inches.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES—won by Morris (Salem); Posaught (East Palestine) second; Hunston (East Palestine) third; Schaeffer (Salem) fourth. Time 16.2 seconds.

100-YARD DASH—Won by Morris (Salem); R. Gray (East Palestine) second; Stone (Salem) third; Nicholson (Wellsville) fourth. Time 10.5 seconds.

SHOT PUT—Won by Beck (Salem); Terry (Salem) second; Yeager (East Liverpool) third; Harris (East Palestine) fourth. Distance—44 feet, 1 1/4 inches.

MILE RUN—Won by Landsberger (East Palestine); Hosack (East Palestine) second; Huddleston (Salem) third; Chappell (Salem)

fourth; Chappell (Salem)

HAINAN'S WIN OPENING GAME IN CITY LOOP

Saxons Nose Out Carroll Club; Church League Games Forfeited

A seven-run spree in the first inning boosted Hainan's Restaurant to a 14-3 victory over the Salem News in its opening game in the Class A softball league at Centennial park Friday evening.

The Hainan team added three runs in the fourth and four in the fifth after getting away to a big lead in the first frame.

Allow 12 Hits

Two News pitchers, George McFeeley and Johnny Zines, were touched for 12 hits, but it was seven errors which played a big part in the News' downfall.

Pitcher Wright held News batters to four hits, allowing one run in the third and four in the fourth.

G. King, Knapp and Kochner led Hainan's batting, each collecting two hits. One of King's blows was good for the circuit.

The Saxons posted an opening game victory in the other Class A contest, nosing out the Carroll Club, 10 to 9.

Two runs in the first inning and an eight-run spurge in the second frame provided the winning markers for the Saxons.

The Carroll Club batters outthrew their rivals, 10 to 8, but failed to take full advantage of all their safe blows. The Carrolls scored four times in the first inning, four times in the third and once in the fifth.

Pauline On Mound

Bill Pauline went the full route on the mound for the winning Saxons, while Fisher and W. Guapone hurled for the Carroll Club. Pauline and Fronius hammered out home runs to lead the Saxons batting.

No games were played in the Church league as the Methodists forfeited to the Emmanuel and the Friends forfeited to Phillips.

KRIEGER LOSES TO BILLY CONN

Pittsburgh Kid Wallops
Middleweight King
In 12 Rounds

NEW YORK, May 13.—They're going to have to supply bigger game for Billy Conn, the Pittsburgh kid, after the terrific beating he gave Solly Krieger, the N. B. A. middleweight king, in their 12 round bout at the Garden last night.

He must have proved to nearly everybody's satisfaction by this time that he can knock the daylights out of all the 160-pounders who can throw into the ring with him. In his last four important fights, Billy has whipped Krieger twice and Fred Apostoli, champion in New York state, the same number of times.

Krieger didn't belong in the same ring with Conn, even though Billy plainly wasn't at his best. He has been troubled with infected tonsils lately and was on his way back home today to have them out. He weighed 170 1/2 last night to Krieger's 166.

There wasn't a knockdown, though it was strange that Solly kept his feet under the barrage of left-rights that poured onto his granite jaw in the late rounds. By a conservative estimate, Conn captured nine chapters. Krieger gained one and a couple could have been called even.

Three New Managers Show Up Well In Major Leagues

Ray Blades Pilots Cards Into First Place Position In National League Race

By JUDSON BAILEY
There should be room in the record after nearly a month of major league competition for an appraisal of the three managers plucked out of hidden corners in the minors last winter to guide the two St. Louis clubs and Philadelphia's punchy Phillies.

Managers have been brought into the big tent from the side shows before, but probably none have been as little heralded as Ray Blades who graduated from the Rochester farm in the international league to the St. Louis Cardinals; Fred Haney, who moved from Toledo in the American Association to the Browns; and Dr. J. Thompson Prothro, who stepped from Little Rock in the Southern Association to the Phillies.

Taking over clubs which finished seventh or last in 1938, this trio has made their charges something to be reckoned with. Today the Cardinals are in first place in the National league and the Phillies in sixth. The Browns are sixth in the American league.

The Cardinals stopped the Cincinnati Reds 8-7 yesterday for their fourth consecutive victory. Johnny Mize hit two home runs and Pepper Martin one to account for seven in the winners' runs.

Seeks Pitcher

Blades still is searching for another starting pitcher; he also has a problem around the Keystone sack-evidenced by the fact the Cardinals have produced only seven double plays in 17 games. But Veterans Jim Brown and Stu Martin ought to do better now that they have displaced rookie hopefuls.

Wrestling Results

Philadelphia—Jim London, 200, St. Louis, threw the Golden Terror, 303, in 31:29.
Buffalo, N. Y.—Steve (Crusher) Casey, 225, Ireland, threw Gino Garibaldi, 218, St. Louis, 27:05.

Maryland's Biggest Race Crowd Turns Out To View Preakness Running Today

Bettors Climb Aboard Johnstown's Band Wagon, All most to a Man; Smallest Field In 24
Years to Go to Post

BALTIMORE, Md., May 13.—The biggest crowd ever to watch a horse race in Maryland—some 45,000 of the turf faithful—headed for Pimlico's time-honored course today to see Johnstown carve another notch of fame out of the hides of the three-year old leaders in the Preakness.

No longer were the followers of the sport of kings, from the two-buck bettors on to the fellow who patronizes the $50 window, wondering who was going to win the 49th running of this rich-mile-and-three-sixteenth gallop. Virtually to a man, they climbed aboard the Johnstown band wagon, leaving only the question of record-breaking in the air.

They thought that if Johnstown's entry mate—Mrs. Ogden Phipps Surprise Package, Gilded Knight—or Clencia the little filly from R. J. Kleberg's King ranch, W. L. Brann's crack mudder, Challedon, or Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Question-Mark, Impound, could force him to move under pressure, High Quest's 1:58 1-5 Preakness record of 1934 might take a kicking around.

Never Been Forced
But, since no horse has ever forced Jockey Jimmy Stout to pour the bat to William Woodward's whirlwind in four 1939 outings, including the Kentucky Derby and the Wood Memorial, this development was not considered likely, much less an approach to Phipps' track mark of 1:56 4-5.

Definite it was, however, that Johnstown, now conceded on the way to the "triple crown" with little in his way, would face the smallest field in 24 years when the bugle calls somewhere around 5:15 p. m. (EST) and that, should he win, the return to the bettors would reach a new all-time low of something like 20 cents on the dollar.

There will be wagering across the board on the Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons entry of Jamestown's big boy and Mrs. Phipps' Gilded Knight. Originally Mr. Fitz entered his duo with Woodward's Challenge, but with the forecast for "weather clear, track fast," the giant son of Challenger II probably will watch the waltz from his barn.

Possible Winners
Slight hope was held out for George Bull's "Mr. Screwball." Volitant, the horse that runs like a million dollars once out and like a plugged nickel the next.

The total purse, figuring the $500 fee for starters, plus the $1,500 the supplementary entries (among them Impound and Clencia), the original nominating funds and the $50,000 added makes this the richest prize ever put together for three-year olds, around $71,000.

Dog Owners Warned By Lisbon's Mayor

LISBON, May 13.—Mayor G. C. Rauch and County Health Commissioner Dr. Seward Harris today issued notices to all dog owners, ordering that the animals be quarantined until further notice.

The order to keep dogs tied up was issued to prevent an epidemic of rabies from sweeping this community and the county as was the case last year. In addition, dogs must be kept on a leash to prevent their running the many fine gardens, both vegetable and flower, which are being made at this time of year. Mayor Rauch cited an ordinance which prohibits dogs from running at large.

Theatre Attractions

Don Ameche and Claudette Colbert in a scene from their co-starring picture, "Midnight", showing at the State Sunday and Monday.

Three pictures which are certain to be among the ten best of the year, two of them academy award contenders, will be offered theater patrons here next week, opening Sunday with a two-day run at the State of "Midnight", comedy, featuring Claudette Colbert and Don Ameche.

This comedy of an American fortune-hunter in Paris, who falls in love with a taxi-driver, but leaves him to stalk bigger game in high society, includes John Barrymore, Francis Lederer, Mary Astor, Hedda Hopper, Rex O'Malley and Elaine Barrie.

Miss Colbert's adventures in Paris begin when a pishish businessman, Barrymore, whom she meets at a party, hires her to make a play for his wife's sweetheart and so restore marital happiness to his badly-shaken home.

"Pygmalion" Next
The Tuesday and Wednesday feature at the State is the film adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's satirical farce, "Pygmalion," the story of a phonetics professor who, on a bet, transforms a London guttersnipe into a duchess, with hilarious consequences to them both.

The last of the week, the State will present the long-awaited "Dark Victory" in which its star, Bette Davis, makes a new bid for the academy award which she has twice before won for perfection of performance. George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Ronald Reagan have the important supporting roles in the picture.

Concluding tonight at the State is the technical production, "Dodge City" featuring Errol Flynn, Alan Hale, Bruce Cabot and Olivia de Havilland.

At The Grand
At the Grand Sunday on a double bill will be: "You Can't Get Away With Murder," featuring Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page, Billy Halop and John Littel in a story by Warden E. Lawes of Sing Sing; and a romantic comedy, "The Kid From Texas," with Florence Rice and Dennis O'Keefe.

Two pictures showing Wednesday at the Grand are: "Bulldog Drummond's Secret Police," a new adventure of the famous detective, played again by John Howard; and "On Trial," with John Littel, Margaret Lindsay and Little Janet Chapman.

Saturday's feature at the Grand will be Charles Starrett's new western, "Texas Stampede." Opening at the Grand next Saturday will be a new serial, "Dick Tracy Returns," featuring Ralph Byrd again as the famous comic strip character who battles crime and violence.

The Grand will show for the last times tonight a new Hopalong Cassidy adventure, "Renegade Trail," with William Boyd as Hopalong.

CIRCUS BRINGS MANY FEATURES

Four Cub Lions, Other Interesting Attractions Are Listed

Lewis Bros. circus arrived early this morning from Ashland to show on the Broadway and Franklin st. lot.

Several outstanding features are included in the 24 numbers of the program, which is presented by about 100 performers.

In the trained animal section is featured the only troupe of Chow dogs ever presented and this group does a regular teeter-board acrobatic number. Lulu, recognized as one of the country's leading elephant stars, is featured in an act of walking on a heavy wire rope and making a complete turn.

The human performers, contribute many features, perhaps the outstanding one being by the European rider, M'lie Lucy, who turns a series of somersaults and flip-flops on the back of a galloping horse.

The last performance will be given tonight, doors opening at 7:30 and the performance starting promptly at 8:15. The show goes from here to Painesville for Monday.

Perhaps the first quadruplets ever to be in Salem came with the circus today. They are four cub lions five weeks old and the center of attraction in the menagerie.
